

Bio:

Heather has been an integral part of ChiroHealthUSA since 2012, where she initially began as the friendly voice welcoming callers to the CHUSA office. Quickly showcasing her vibrant personality, she transitioned to attending seminars, fueled by her passion to support and uplift the chiropractic profession.

Over the years, Heather's role evolved, and she now serves as the Director of Business Relations at ChiroHealthUSA. In this capacity, she assists chiropractors and their teams in navigating the complexities of setting discounts and successfully implementing the network into their practices.

Known for her candid and direct approach, Heather's no-holds-barred attitude has proven invaluable in helping countless chiropractic teams overcome their most significant challenges. Her unwavering dedication to the profession has garnered her the distinction of receiving the highest volume of fan mail at the ChiroHealthUSA office.

With Heather, you can expect nothing but straight talk and practical solutions, making her insights invaluable to any chiropractic professional seeking to thrive in their practice.
